

Global Ecotourism Conference 2007

May 14-16, 2007

Co-organized by the International Ecotourism Society (TIES), Ecotourism Norway and the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), the Global Ecotourism Conference 2007 (Oslo, Norway, May 14-16, 2007) will be the first major international conference on ecotourism since the United Nations' International Year of Ecotourism in 2002. This conference brings together ecotourism associations and networks from around the world, as well as key industry and government leaders and professionals, to strengthen the collective voice of the ecotourism community. The conference is a premier opportunity to become part of the growing global movement for ecotourism, which is playing a crucial part in ensuring that travel and tourism remains a viable sector of the global economy that is socially and environmentally, as well as financially, sustainable. Join us in Oslo in May 2007, and learn how to make your commitment to responsible travel work for a better future!
